

Take a look around you. From furniture and toilet paper to bread and fruit, almost everything you see was transported in a truck. And it's the truck driver who takes care of loading, transporting, and unloading all those things.

With a safety vest on, the driver can get out of the truck in dangerous places.

The truck driver wears useful clothes. Sturdy safety boots and work gloves are handy during loading and unloading. Sunglasses can help against the bright sunlight on the road. When the truck driver loads or unloads cold food like ice cream, he wears a freezer suit to stay warm. Of course, a girl can become a truck driver too!
