

Vincent

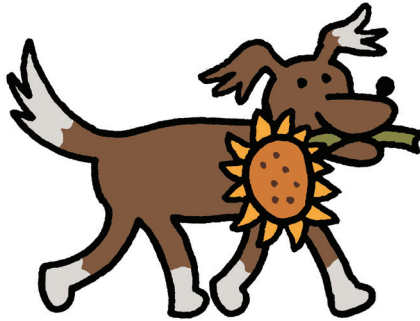

and the Sunflowers

Story and illustrations

Barbara Stok

Translation

Laura Watkinson

RUBINSTEIN

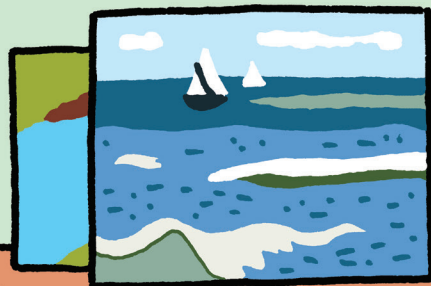

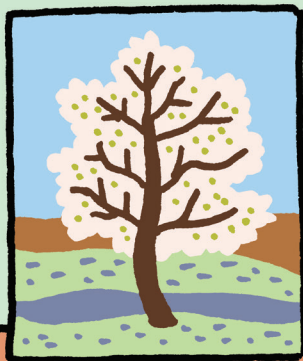

Do you see that yellow house? An artist lives there.

That artist's name is Vincent. He really loves to paint. He does it every day. Sometimes he gets so lost in his painting that he even forgets to eat.

'It's wonderful to look at something and see that it's beautiful and to think about it and then decide: I'm going to paint that,' he says.

Vincent wants to make paintings that touch people's hearts. Paintings that you look at and think: Oh, that's so wonderful!

You can paint all kinds of things. Vincent once painted a picture of his own shoes. Old brown shoes with a bit of sand still on them. He thought they made a good subject for a painting.

It takes Vincent days to make a painting.
Sometimes a whole week, or even longer.
So he has to pick his subjects carefully.
'I have so many ideas!' he cries enthusiastically.

Now Vincent is looking for a new subject for his next painting. It's time to go out and about!

ARE YOU COMING
TOO?